The Royal Clematis

CRIMSON STAR

A Hybrid Red

A new variety. The name itself suggests the color, which is sparkling bright red, no purple tone, with brownish anthers. In size it is truly spectacular, for it often attains a diameter of 6 to 7 inches. Comparatively new, this showy hybrid (6 to 8 ft.) holds the distinction of having the best red tone yet produced. The blooming period is from June to September. Each $1.75.

PURPLE JACKMANI

A WINNER in Every Garden
RAPID Growing

The rapid growing purple Jackmani are for people who have an eye for the beautiful and love for grace. Such is the old-fashioned Jackmani, dripping a curtain of large purple blossoms. Grows very abundantly, extremely hardy. Flowers 5 inches across. Blooms from June to September. Each $1.75.

Ernest Markham

Jewels for the Garden

Lady Betty Balfour Velvet-Purple

Clematis viticella, introduced to England from Spain in the sixteenth century, has given us many delightful hybrids, among them Lady Betty Balfour. In early spring it should be cut back half way if one would enjoy full value of its velvety purple flowers through the summer months.

Each $1.75

Gipsy Queen Violet-Purple

A hybrid of the well known Jackmani, Gipsy Queen has velvety violet-purple flowers of a pleasing size. It is typically a summer-blooming variety with all the vigor of its parent, and it should be pruned severely in early spring.

Each $1.75

Elsa Spath A "Must" in Blue

Bright blue, profuse.

Each $1.75

Henry Chapin

Another Worth-While Red

A fine red Clematis with medium sized bloom. Profuse blooms in midsummer on a medium height vine.

Each $1.75

Huldine A Winner from England

One of the newest hybrids from England, Huldine has received recognition from the Royal Horticultural Society. The translucent blooms are pearly white with delicate mauve-pink bars on the reverse side.

Each $1.75

Fairy Queen A Novelty in Pink

Pale flesh-pink to mauve-white bloom of large size with a streak of pink on each petal. Medium height and midsummer bloomer.

Each $1.75

Texensis

Ernest Markham

Bright Scarlet-Red

A strong growing Clematis with bloom in midsummer. The blooms are medium size and very bright red. This variety is another good red.

Each $1.75

Crispa Known as Marsh or Curly Clematis

Also known as Marsh or Curly Clematis, it is characterized by graceful foliage and dainty bell or urn-shaped flowers. The color of this species, which is indigenous to the South, has been described as steel-blue, and it has proved hardy in northern New York. While its native habitat is that of a swamp, it thrives well in ordinary loam that has been well limed. These curious, bell-like flowers are in evidence from July to September and the plant can be expected to climb 8 feet on a trellis, or better still, scramble over some early blooming shrub.

Each $1.50

Texensis Urn-Shaped Reddish Rose Flowers

Texas may well be proud of this species which has its natural habitat in that great state. Indeed, the curious urn-shaped flowers of reddish rose, softened on the inner side with buff and pinkish buff tones, make this plant, often listed Coccinea, unique. The long-haired seed clusters are truly fascinating. Plant this species near a fence, or let it ramble over a stone wall, and it will soon take on a character all its own. It is well to know that this plant is herbaceous in our climate, and sends up entirely new growth each year.

Each $1.50

Unusual Clematis for the Connoisseur

Duchess of Albany

Vigorous sprays of gorgeous pink, trumpet-like flowers on slender but sturdy stems suggest a grace and a delicacy rarely found among climbing plants. The dark brown center of the flower and the white streaks on the outer side of the petals are interesting features. July to September is the blooming period, and this variety is particularly desirable where it can be seen at close range. Of interest to those who are partial to American plants is the fact that this magnificent hybrid had its origin as a hybrid of Texensis—the Scarlet Clematis of Texas. Each $2.75

Duchess of Albany

FOR NEW EXPERIENCE GROW CRISPA, DUCHESS OF ALBANY, TEXENSIS

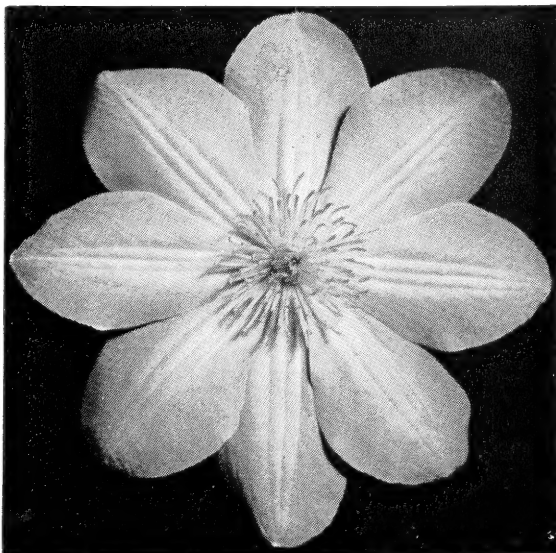

Lasurstern

A fine deep blue flower of a very large size makes this variety very distinctive. What it lacks in quantity of bloom, it certainly more than makes up for in size and quality of flower. Each $3.50

Lanuginosa Candida

A Study in White

Pure white. A white form of one of the outstanding early-flowering species. Strong grower, 12 to 15 feet. Has green ornamental leaves; makes an excellent cut flower with its large wax-like blooms. Each $1.75

Lanuginosa Candida

King Edward VII

Crimson and Violet

Crimson bars against a violet background undoubtedly suggested the real name of this variety. The large and distinctive blossoms are produced on 8- to 10-foot vines during the summer and fall months. Each $1.75

Lord Neville Plum Purplish

With petals rich in texture, like plum-colored velvet, Lord Neville will add a note of luxury and atmosphere to any garden. Where average height and long blooming season are desired, together with flowers unusual in outline and exquisite in color, this extraordinary plant will meet the requirements. Each $1.75

Marie Boisselot It's New

A large flowering Clematis that is in a class by itself. The exquisite beauty of form with pure white blossoms and yellow stamens places it in a class apart. Top selection. $2.00 each

Belle of Woking Bluish Mauve

An English hybrid recently introduced in America, it has double flowers that range from pale bluish mauve to silver-gray. Since the flowers are produced on year-old wood, pruning should consist of removing dead wood only. June and July are months of profuse bloom in the garden, and yet this climber attracts attention for its unusual charm. Eight feet seems to be its limit. Each $1.75

Clematis - Many of Our Hybrids

Mme. Edouard Andre

Mme. Edouard Andre

"America's Popular Red"

Another red Clematis, but this one has a purplish cast, the flowers are smaller, and the petals are more rounded than those of Jackmani rubra and Crimson Star. Perhaps more modest in its rapidity of growth (7 ft.), it excels, however, in a profusion of bloom. A cluster of these flowers suggests the richness and texture of an old Persian rug.

Each $1.75

Mrs. Cholmondeley

Wisteria-blue is featured by this lady with the long name, and the color, we think, is far more remarkable than the designated name. Rare delicacy of color and large, open flowers, borne in profusion, are desirable qualities for summer-flowering vines, and it is extraordinary to find such an unusual tone of blue in this group of plants.

Tangutica Obtusiuscula Yellow Japanese Lanterns

Yellow bells, like Japanese lanterns, on stately stems, or modest Chinese lanterns—describe them as you will, these flowers are golden yellow, dainty and unusual. In late June come the first flowers, and the blooming carries through until September. Clambering over a rock, Tangutica obtusiuscula, the best of the yellow Clematis, seems to grow well.

Each $1.75

Ville de Lyon

This Clematis produces an abundance of carmine-red flowers which are the more striking because of the darker tones in the center of each blossom. From July until September it clammers to a height of 8 to 10 feet.

William Kennett A Long Bloomer

The coolness of deep lavender is a welcome adjunct to any garden, and it is all the more effective when the flowers are unusual in character. In addition to having a long blooming period (June to September), William Kennett is a sturdy grower, and produces flowers of exceptional size.

Each $1.75

Miss Bateman White and Cream

White with cream bars, profuse. Well shaped flowers. Vigorous grower.

Each $1.75

Montana Rubens

"China, the mother of gardens," gave us this early blooming variety with its rosy red flowers, 1 to 2 inches across, which change to a deep, clear pink as they expand. Here is a plant, too, for the garden in late May and June. It will enhance the beauty of any window, and seems particularly adapted for growing on walls, since it grows 10 to 15 feet tall. Since it blooms on year-old wood, pruning should consist of the removal of dead wood only.

Each $1.50

Ramona

Ramona The Indian Princess

Probably so named because it suggested something of the beauty of the Indian maiden, this lavender-blue Clematis is accentuated by a disc of darker anthers. Short, pointed buds, rounded petals which make a full flower, and the vigorous growth are the distinguishing marks of this exceptional variety which is a fine bloomer during the summer months.

Each $1.75

Mme. Baron Veillard

Mme. Baron Veillard

If pastel tones are desired, the warm lilac-rose flowers of this French introduction will undoubtedly meet with approval. As the days get cooler, the color of the blooms becomes more intense, and its growth is checked only by frost. Then, too, it is tall growing (10 to 12 ft.), sturdy of growth, and very profuse to bloom. The flowers are moderate in size, borne in generous clusters, and of unusually delicate beauty. From all accounts, Mme. Baron Veillard is destined to become very popular.

Each $1.75

The President

White trellises embellished with the reddish plum-violet blossoms of The President will give to the summer garden that richness which the dark-flowered climbing Roses provide in June. It has proved to be a thrifty variety, producing its blooms freely the entire length of its 10-foot vines. This plant will appeal to the discriminating gardener

Each $2.00

Nelly Moser

A Study in Mauve and Red

Among the many excellent hybrids of Clematis lanuginosa, the so-called "Woody-leaved Clematis," is Nelly Moser. Red bars accentuate the pale mauve and white petals. Truly an unusual flower, profuse in its bloom and vigorous in its growth (10 to 12 feet), this variety will bring new interest to the summer garden.

Clematis . . .

Wonders of the Climbing Family

Extra-hardy, huge-blossoming climbing plants. They have become the show pieces of famous gardens in America and abroad. Long a favorite of landscape architects looking for the striking and unusual, Clematis is now being acclaimed by the newcomer to gardening because it will survive below-freezing winters, is unusually pest-free, needs little planting and pruning skill and rewards the gardener with truly magnificent blossoms all summer. Cannot be equalled as striking background, for porch or pillar, trellis or fence. May also be grown successfully indoors. This catalog comes to you from the country's largest propagator of Clematis.

CULTURAL INFORMATION

Select a location for Clematis which receives at least six hours of sunshine a day and see that the soil is a rich loose loam with good drainage. If the soil is not rich, it would pay to dig a good hole, remove the soil and refill with a good loam. Provide a support for the plants to climb upon as Clematis do not like to have their tops and leaves on the ground but rather up into the air and light. A moist, cool root-run for the summer months is well worth the trouble of mixing three-fourths peat moss and one-fourth Driconure to provide a mulch at least two inches deep and in a two-foot circle around the plant. A little Vigoro and lime worked into the soil once or twice a season will supply the essential requirements. In extremely dry weather they should be watered from time to time. When cold weather arrives in the fall, safe winter protection can be easily accomplished by pulling soil up around the stems and covering with leaves, straw or other loose material. If height of vine is desired, little pruning, and only to remove the dead wood, in February or March, is enough, but generally Clematis make a better display if cut back to 18 inches above the ground in the very early spring before the new shoots have started.

CLEMATIS FOR POT CULTURE

The cultural directions given for forcing Clematis are also applicable to plants grown outside in pots. The pots may be plunged in coal-ashes or set in a cold frame until foliage has developed. In fact, most gardeners usually grow their potted plants in such an area until they are ready to flower. Applications of liquid manure at periodic intervals will help materially.

For Trellises and Porches, Good Watering Necessary

It should be remembered that potted plants require watering frequently when they are set on terraces or porches. Then, too, Clematis require sunlight to produce well-developed flowers, and one cannot expect to obtain satisfactory flowering plants in heavy shade.

Forcing for Flower Shows

Forcing Clematis for flower shows or for house decoration offers little or no difficulty. Six-inch pots are both convenient and large enough to hold an average size plant.

Good Potting Soil

Use potting soil composed of 3 parts of gritty loam, 1 part leaf-mold, and a small amount of lime or lime rubble. This mixture should be put through a coarse sieve. Provide ample drainage of broken crock in each pot. Moderately firm potting suits the plants best.

Temperatures

The temperature and moisture requirements for Clematis are similar to those of other potted plants grown in greenhouses. A temperature varying from 65 to 72 degrees is satisfactory. Water the plants thoroughly after potting and thereafter treat them like other potted plants.

Rapid Growth . . . Supports

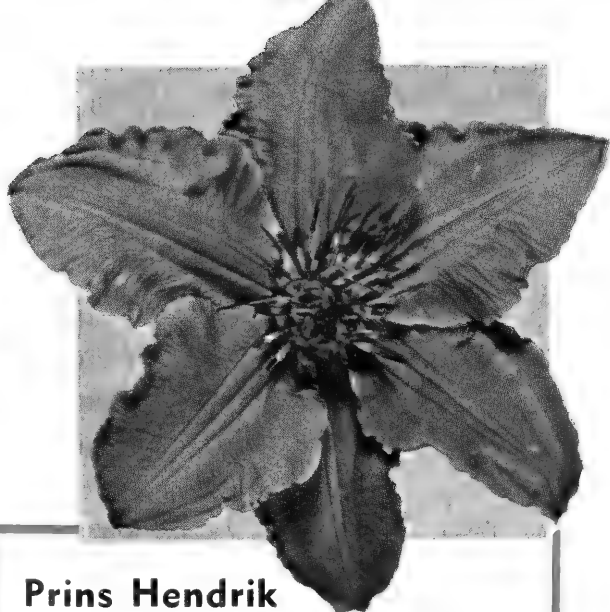

If one would have well-formed specimens, supports should be provided as soon as the potting is done. It may be a bamboo cane, or a piece of strong wire or a simple wooden trellis. Usually Clematis grown in a greenhouse produces ample foliage and comes into bloom about 8 to 10 weeks after planting. The blooming date depends on the temperature of the greenhouse. Plants grown in a temperature of 65 degrees are more satisfactory than those forced at a higher temperature.

Montana Undulata

Similar to Montana rubens in its general characteristics, this variety is distinguished by its soft mauve-pink flowers. A setting of stone, preferably a wall or a terrace, will do much to bring out the beauty of this Asiatic treasure.

Prins Hendrik

Beauty of a Rare Orchid

There is something indescribably beautiful about blue flowers. Prins Hendrik is azure-blue, with ruffled petals often 7 inches or more in diameter. Indeed, the flowers suggest the beauty of rare Orchids. It is desirable for conservatory treatment as well as for outdoor use, and in either case, the flowers last well when cut. Since it reaches a height of about 7 feet, it can be cared for easily in a conservatory and be trained for a desired effect.

Once you start growing Clematis, you will discover a wealth of beauty and color, combining vigor and hardiness, characteristic of this vigorous Clematis family.

The rambling habit makes them especially good for garden walls, over old tree stumps. They are unequalled for pagodas, trellis, as the dense leafy foliage make an excellent screen.

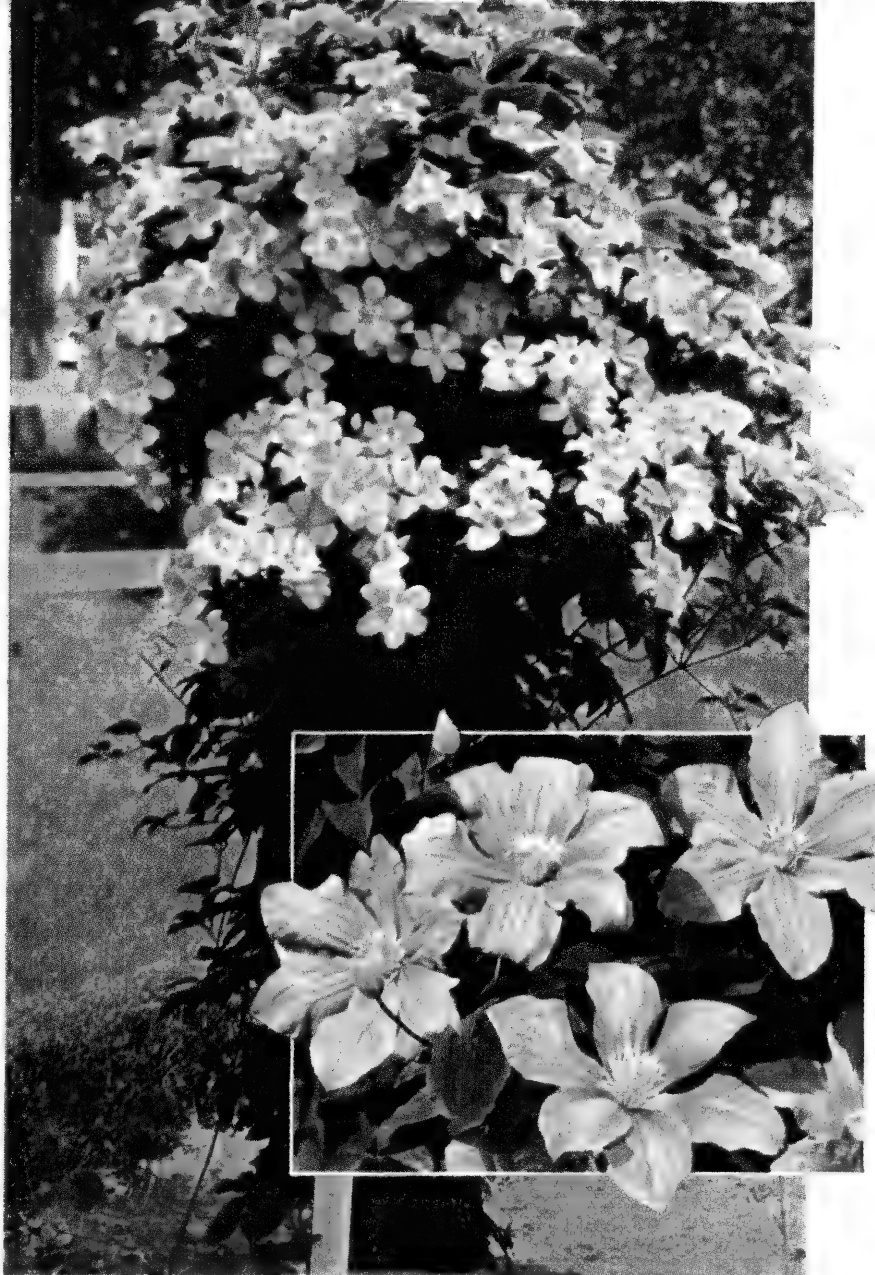

ENJOY THE BEAUTY OF NATURE. YOU WILL BE MORE THAN REPAYED FOR THE PLEASURE AND SATISFACTION A FEW CLEMATIS WILL GIVE.

Pink
Varieties

Excellent color. Gracefully curved petals that range in tone from satiny rose to rich pink places this variety in a distinct category. Not only are the flowers the nearest approach to clear pink of all hybrids, but the plant is a strong grower and a profuse bloomer from July to September, and reaches 8 to 10 feet in height.

The Choice Climbing Hydrangeas

HYDRANGEA PETIOLARIS

Reasonably priced at $2.75 each plant.

This unusual climbing shrub-like vine is both artistic and amazing.

Grows quite "woody", clings especially to brick or wooden walls, without support. Does well on old trees or stumps.

The foliage is dense and deep green in color. The blossoms are characteristic Hydrangea-like, fragrant, white in color. Not unlike the national favorite shrub Hydrangea, that can be found growing in so many gardens.

This amazing artistic plant does well in shade and sun, good especially for northern exposure, west walls or places where shade is dense.

We desire everyone who has a garden to own and plant one of these fine vines, it is a type of climber you will admire for a lifetime. Height can be controlled from 10 to 20 feet as desired.

Midget Hedge

Teucrium Chamaedrys

(Miniature Boxwood Hedge)

A low growing hedge suitable for hedging or growing in front of a wall. Resembles dwarf Boxwood, holding its leaves 10 months of the year. Grows 10 to 15 inches but can be sheared at any height lower than that. Hardy and thrives in most locations. Should be planted 6 inches apart for a dense hedge. 10 for $3.95; 25 for $8.75; 50 for $14.95; 100 for $24.95.

Golden Syringa Flowering Shrub

Selected Specimen of Great Beauty

Always a "showy" shrub because of its all-season golden yellow foliage. Flowers are white with a delightful fragrance.

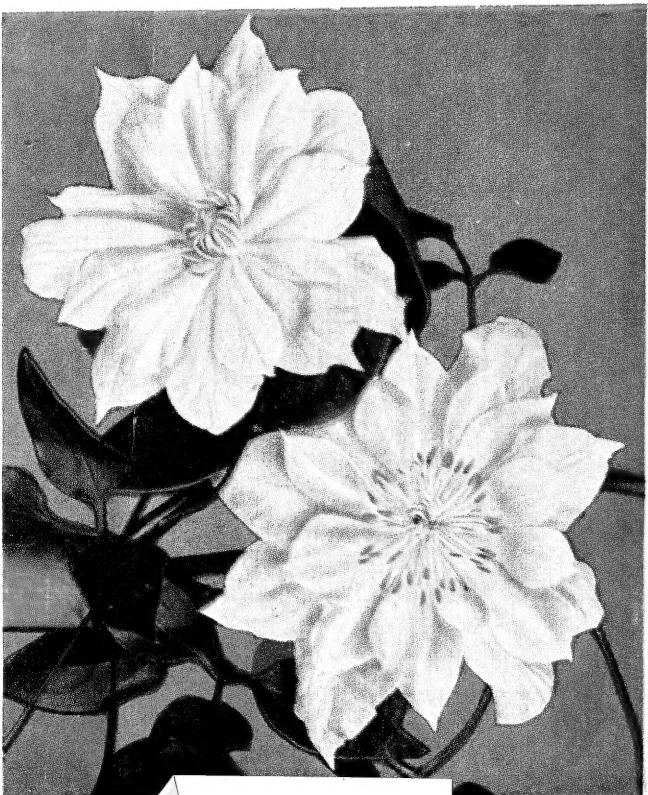

Excellent in the foundation planting or for accent when 2 or 3 Golden Syringas are planted in a group.

Grows to a height of 4 to 5 feet and is not fussy about location, does well in smoky or dusty places.

Price: 12-15 in., $1.75 each;
2 for $3.40; 3 for $5.00.

Golden Syringa

Double Flowering Duchess of Edinburgh Clematis

DUCHESS of EDINBURGH

Double, pure white, and not unlike a Gardenia, is the description for the flowers of this most desirable plant. White flowers make highlights in the shady garden and help to tone down the brilliant hues in the open border. It is interesting to note that this new introduction blooms on year-old wood, hence pruning should consist of removing only the dead wood in late February or March. The growth habit of Duchess of Edinburgh suggests its use for pillar treatment.
